STEWARDSHIP

Did you know that your physical donation (envelope, cash, check) has to be touched by at least 5 people to process it? Donating online means less manpower from both volunteers and employees!

Online giving is paperless, good for the environment and cheaper for the parish. By establishing a recurring payment online, the parish's income is more consistent, allowing the parish to pay bills and budget more effectively.

We do understand, if you are unable to go paperless and please know that your donations are definitely appreciated. However, if you are able to go paperless, please visit our website www.sjtwchurch.org and click on your desired collection to set up an automatic donation.

Offertory, Retire the Debt,
Diocesan Development Drive - Please don't forget to choose St. Joseph the Worker (2070), as your parish.

To cancel your paper envelopes, please contact the parish office at 801-255-8902 or office@sjtwchurch.org

The Diocese does not allow anyone to solicit financial contributions or assistance from an individual or approves of solicitation for personal business as a representative of the Church. THE COMMEMORATION OF ALL THE FAITHFUL DEPARTED AND THE DAY OF THE DEAD

Synthesis

All Souls' Day is also called The Commemoration of All the Faithful Departed. It is a day of prayer and remembrance for those who passed away. The celebration takes place on November 2nd .

The Day of the Dead is an indigenous-based commemoration to honor our ancestors and to center our lives in the Spiritual Cycle of life-death. Its foundation is the trust that one day out of the year, the spirits of the dead return to earth to join their loved ones. It is celebrated also on November 2nd.

The Hispanic/Latinx communities in the U.S.A. put these two celebrations together and it represents the indigenous spiritualities and western Christianity. More specifically with Catholic teachings and practices introduced in Mexico since the sixteenth century.

Historical and Ecclesiastical Background.

Since the 2nd century, the early Christians communities prayed for and celebrated the Eucharist for their beloved dead. They would pray on the third day after burial, the 7th and 30th day of the month, and in their anniversary. Remembering the dead on the 2 November became official in the year 998 when Abbot Odilo of Cluny (994-1048) made it obligatory in all the monasteries. In 1915, Pope Benedict XV granted permission to priests to celebrate several Masses on this day. The liturgy of these Masses are geared toward highlighting the Paschal Mystery, and Jesus' victory over sin and death. The recommended Gospel for the celebration is Jn. 6:37-40. The overarching message is to understand death in the light of Jesus' resurrection.

- The mendicant friars (Franciscans, Dominicans, Augustinians) who came to the New Continent in 1493 celebrated All Saints Day but not All Souls.
- The friars incorporated All Saints Day within their liturgical calendar in Mexico. It took approximately 150 years for this celebration to take a full form.
- In the seventeenth century, the friars explained to the native people that the Saints were Catholic men and women who lived exemplary lives: they were martyrs for the sake of the gospel, spread the word of God throughout the world. The Saints will act as intercessors or supplicants between men and God.
- For the Native people the intermediaries were the dead, the ones who departed to the supernatural world and served the gods and goddesses. In cooperation with more sympathetic friars, the Indigenous people recreated the celebration of the Day of the Dead. For them, the deceased were saints too.
- Since the middle of the sixteen century, the purpose of the Day of the Dead was to assist the deceased to find the right path, to never forget the natural world they inhabited, and to visit their in kind once a year.
- The native people celebrated two feasts for the deceased: the "little feast of the dead" (La Fiesta de los Niños Muertos), and the "great feast of the dead" (La Fiesta Grande de los Muertos). The celebrations of the deceased children slowly vanished over time, but were later recuperated in the celebration of the "niños inocentes," or "el día de los inocentes." that takes place on December 28. This religious-cultural celebration commemorates also the killing of infants in Bethlehem (Judea) ordained by the King Herod in his desire to kill the recently born Jesus of Nazareth.

- The most popular tradition during the day is the consumption of the bread for the dead. In pre-Hispanic times, the essential ingredient in the making of the bread was amaranth seeds. Amaranth was “a means of communion with the gods.” Through bread made with Amaranth, the indigenous people entered in communication with the gods, thus, the human and the supernatural forces maintained their unit, harmony, and relationship.

Altars for the Dead

- The altar is a sacred space where the spirit of the departed will join the dear ones. Traditionally, the altars are dedicated to a person and are prepared with flower petals, candles, scents, and offerings (ofrendas) that entice the deceased to return home.
- The altar has different purposes: to preserve the collective memory of those who have contributed to the community, to teach the foundations of catechism and the significance of Jesus’ death and resurrection.
- The altars for the dead is a glimpse of the life of the deceased, and ultimately inspires us to prepare for the time of the undoing of our existence.
- The altars to honor the dead have three or four levels, and on the altar people place their ofrendas (offerings). Three level altars represent the three persons of the Holy Trinity, and the road the deceased have to travel before meeting the Creator.
- When the altars have four levels it might represent the four seasons of the year, the four cardinal points, or the four sacred element of fire, wind, earth, and water. The fire symbolizes the Holy Spirit, the wind is the Breadth of God, the soil is God’s creation, and the water is the purifying element needed to meet God in His Holy Altar.

This year we have dedicated this Alter in loving memory of the diseased pastors at Saint Joseph the Worker Parish.
